MAGIC

Metamodernism in
Analog photography

Original prints offer
MAGIC series

I CREATE THINGS

When I work on my “Magic” series, I take long exposures ranging from twenty minutes to several hours of exposure. During that time I run around my object in darkness and paint it with lots of different colour flashes. So the film collects all the colourful light into one picture and gives us a possibility to see all the scene in large format print.

So it's either scan from the 6x6 film and print on collectable paper (with minimal corrections) max 150x150cm (or split the picture in 4 pieces and get 300x300cm), or analog print from film to paper max 150x150cm.

Prints on commercial materials also possible.

Max MAGIC

If you want maximum of that MAGIC I represent, you'll need special lighting.
My crew would install it in your space for additional fee.

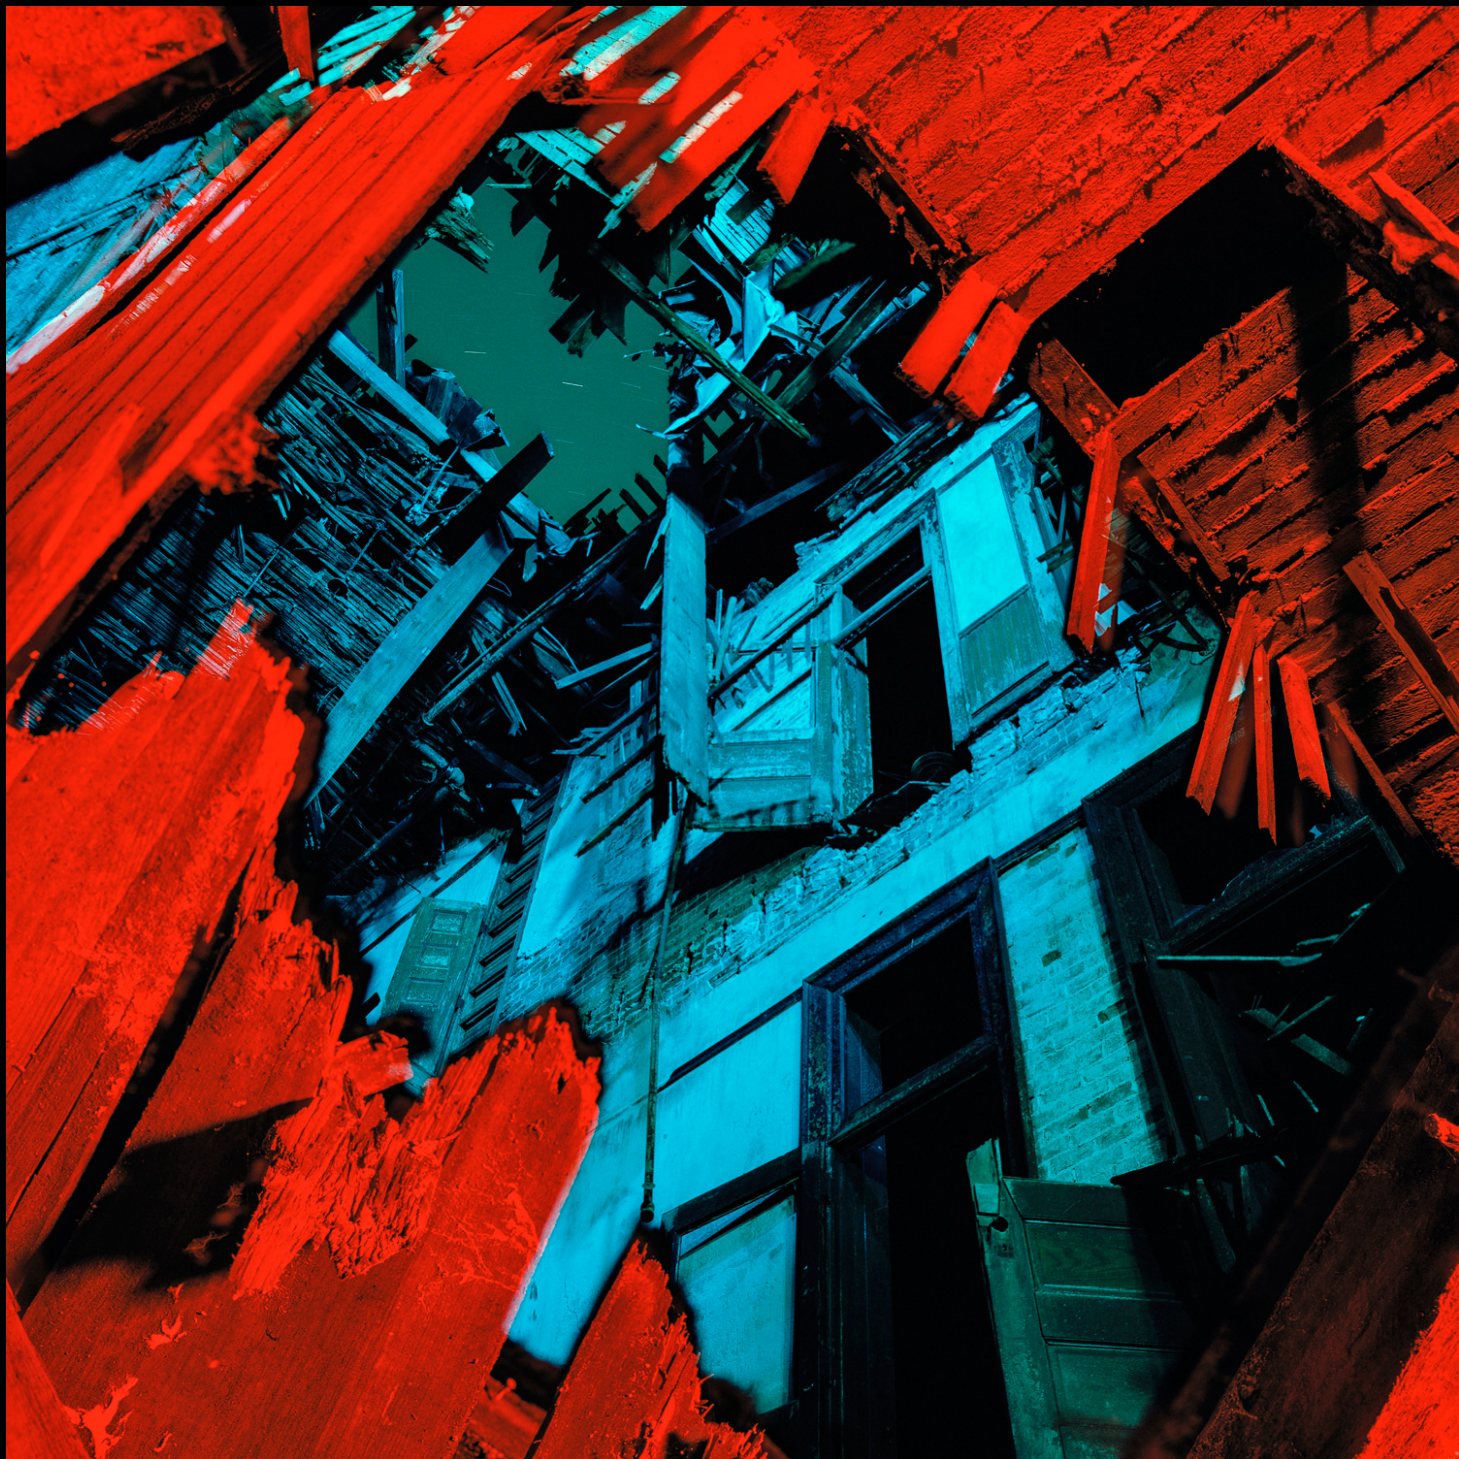

When you light these prints with fading RGB colour, it changes the deepness of picture and creates 3D illusion. And, believe me, you can not film that emotion, you have to see it live.

These are filmed:
